Hindu-Islam Relationship in Bali (Tracing the Historical Traces of Hindu-Islamic Relations in Buitan Village, Manggis District, Karangasem Regency-Bali)

Cogent Social Sciences

Dear Wisarja,

Your manuscript entitled "Hindu-Islam Relationship in Bali (Tracing the Historical Traces of Hindu-Islamic Relations in Buitan Village, Manggis District, Karangasem Regency-Bali)", which you submitted to Cogent Social Sciences, has now been reviewed.

The reviewers unanimously stress the need for clarity in various parts of the manuscript. They call for a better elucidation of the research problem, research objectives, and the relationship between the subject matter and the geographical context of the study. Reviewer 1 emphasizes enhancing the quality of the article through clarity of purpose, while Reviewer 2 points to a lack of contextual information related to Buitan Village and the historical context of Hindu-Islam relationships in Bali. Reviewer 4 also highlights the need for alignment between the title, abstract, and the content.

Another common theme is the lack of robust analysis and the need for more historical and cultural insights. Reviewers 2 and 4 emphasize the need for more explanation and detailed analysis on the relationship between Hindu and Islam within the historical context. They seek more substance in discussing how these relationships are implemented in daily life and in the culture of Bali, not merely general teachings.

Methodological issues are raised as well, particularly by Reviewers 3 and 4. They stress the need for consistency in the research area or locus, proper citation of reliable sources, and a more detailed and operational presentation of the methodology. They point to the lack of specific information about where and how the research was conducted.
